IS IT THE PAPER AGE?

SINCE PULP CAME INTO USE THERE HAVE BEEN MANY CHANGES.

Paper is Taking the Place of Wood, Stone and Iron - It is Now Made Absolutely Fireproof - Shirt Bosoms That Don't Have to Be Washed.

Without steam and railways modern society would undoubtedly exist. But what a state of intellectual darkness would be that of civilized mankind without paper and the secret of its manufacture! For many years the rag met all demands of the paper industry. The increasing diversity of uses to which paper and paper pulp have been put in the last decade have made it necessary for manufacturers to cast about for more effective elementary substances. Boots, money, boats, gas pipes, impermeable casks, toys, bottles, pipes, floors, doors, ceilings, architectural ornaments, roofing, chimneys and even complete fireproof houses are now made of paper. Many claim that it will eventually supplant wood, for it will neither crack nor warp. It can be triturated, put under great pressure and subjected to certain chemical treatment and will then take a high polish and will resist the effects of fire better than any other material known. Paper is gradually supplanting metal in certain lines. Locomotive wheels have been made of it for several years, and even rails for railroads. The next progressive step will be to use it for the manufacture of ordnance, which is not by any means a remote possibility. Paper has largely taken the place of linen. We have paper collars and cuffs and blankets. An ingenious inventor has devised paper shirt bosoms, which can be torn off like the pages from a calendar, thus enabling the wearer to have a clean shirt front as often as he desires. It is only a matter of time before cloths, dressing gowns and entire suits of clothes will be made from paper. The soldiers of the Japanese army wore paper trousers and jerseys during their famous winter campaign.

For the better grades the Broussonetia papyrifera is used. This is gathered in the spring of the year. It is placed in water, mixed with wood ashes and is then beaten until it is reduced to a thick pulp, which is dipped out in good sized ladles and spread out in thin sheets upon bamboo frames. A different grade of paper is made from fragments of bark, which are trodden under foot in a manner similar to that employed in the paper presses in some countries. This process of making the pulp is very tedious, but it possesses the great merit of preserving the fibers intact and not breaking them, as is done when machinery is used. The pulp is then metamorphosed into paper, and the sheets are stacked up in piles six feet high and cut into pieces. Then the piles of paper are compressed by the stamping of feet. The roots and seeds of a plant called tuckpaul are added to the pulp when a grade possessing greater tenacity and toughness is desired. —Philadelphia Record.

Use and Abuse of Money.

There are many fellows at college who have money and use it well, but the more fact that a man has cash in his pocket does not get him on to athletic teams, or into college clubs or societies, or at the head of his class. It helps him on if he's a good chap. It holds him back if he isn't. Then by and by, when you get through college, you will find it just the same in business of all kinds. Money seems to help a good man along and seems to be the worst enemy of a bad man. So that to think only of money first, and then of doing fine things with it after it is gained, is putting the cart before the horse. And, if you want to be in the senate, it's the wrong way to go at it to go down to South America and work in a gold mine for 20 years simply and solely to "raise the cash" for the purpose of buying the votes of a state, even if such a procedure were moral and right, which is unquestionably not the case.

Rather make up your mind what you want to do and then try to make a financial success of it as well as all other kinds of successes. If it is the hide and leather business, try to make money each year, but try also to make money fairly, to learn the trade thoroughly and to keep pace with the literature, the politics, the life of your own day. If it is the ministry or law or literature, try to make both ends meet each year, and to make money just the same, but don't forget that all these branches of work require something besides cash to make them successes. In a certain way it is just as wrong to try to believe that money is an evil as it is to let yourself believe that money is the only thing worth having. It is a great good thing when you have learned how to use it and a mighty poor thing when it is abused. Decide, therefore, on what work you will set out, without regard to money, and then try to make a financial as well as an intellectual success of it. —Harper's Round Table.

Dupin and the Epigram.

Dupin's belief in the omnipotence of epigram as a moral veneer for political as well as other immorality was to a great extent justified by his thorough knowledge of and his supreme contempt for the majority of his countrymen, and especially for those actively engaged in politics. He knew that in France one well delivered epigram is sufficient to start a man on a prosperous career, sufficient to hurl the man at whom it is leveled from the pedestal he has climbed with infinite trouble and perseverance. And, seeing that he had not his equal in the facility for coining them, not even in Talleyrand, that his peer in that respect, Rivarol, had been in his grave since the beginning of the century, Dupin had never been very sparing of them. From that moment, however, he began to sow them broadcast, taking care not to hide his light under a bushel, for modesty was not Dupin's besetting sin. Rather than plead and not be reported he refused to plead at all, which, in fact, he did when asked to defend Beranger a third time. Of course he did not say so in as many words, but no one was his dupe, because every one was aware that, as an exceptional measure, the government intended to exclude reporters from the trial. —Van Dam's "Undercurrents of the Second Empire."

Hotels.

American hotels are so taken up with the desire to dazzle us that they sometimes make us uncomfortable. It is very fine and impressive to have one's card handled by two men and a big boy and then a little boy when calling upon friends at a great hotel, but it is fatiguing nevertheless to wait 30 minutes and then have the little boy come down and tell you they are not at home. Though most of us cannot abide some of the nuisances of the foreign system, such as being charged extra for soap and service, yet many traveling Americans, who are sufficiently patriotic, say that our big, glittering hotels are not quite up to the standard of the best ones on the other side in the small details of making one peacefully and restfully happy. The innkeeper's instinct for knowing exactly what is wanted without being told is more highly developed over there. They have been at it for so many more generations. —Jesse Lynch Williams in Scribner's.

Triplets in China.

In the southern provinces of China there is a superstition that if triplets are born one of the three children will eventually become a noted rebel, writes Dr. Henry Liddell in Demorest's Magazine. In order to avoid that direst of Chinese curses, a bad son, a "wise man" is sent for in order to decide which of the three children is the destined black sheep. The three infants having been conveyed into a perfectly dark room, the "wise man" takes three pieces of twine, each of a different color, as white, red and black, and entering the room, ties one of these pieces of string round a wrist of each baby. The one which, when brought out into the light, is found to have the red string on its wrist is drowned like a puppy.

He Had His Revenge.

"When a young and callow freshman, I used to try all kinds of fool experiments," laughed the usually staid professor. "The inspiration to these outbreaks of lunacy was in the surroundings. I would fall in a fit just to see some of the old people scamper about and look frightened. Among strangers I would sometimes pretend to be dumb, sometimes deaf and on occasions assume both of these difficult roles. Tom Hilt always used to help me when he was available.

"One day when we were on our way to college, a bevy of pretty, laughing girls took the train at a village station and fluttered into our car. I winked at Tom, and the farce began. After we had murdered the sign language of the mutes in a few meaningless finger gestures and facial contortions, Tom left for the smoker, for he never could control his nerves.

"What a pity," said one of the girls. "It is hard," chirped up the prettiest of the lot, "to be deaf and dumb and in addition to being so morally homely. Note the size of that mouth, girls, the slope of that forehead, the failure to mate in those eyes and the hump on that nose that is Roman—all over his face."

"I came mighty near having a natural fit, for I was a fairly good looking boy and proud of it. Some of the other young ladies undertook my defense, but my defamer rode rough shod over them all. I was sorrowful, shallow, narrow and criminally disposed. If my picture did not come time to adorn a rogues' gallery, justice would be cheated. And that young fellow who had gone out was better. I invented a case of nosebleed and fled.

"It was Tom's sister who had been visiting friends, and he put up the job. I got even with her, for she's my wife."

Why Jews Cannot Be Christians.

The divine origin of Jesus can never find acceptance with our people. His claim also as the greatest teacher of humanity can never be substantiated as long as we have Moses and the prophets, Job and the Psalms. Our laws come through the son of Ananias, our exhortations to righteousness from the sacred seers, our submission to God's will from the dweller of Uz, our sweet sentiments of love and gratitude from the royal singer. The Old Testament indeed places emphasis on the element of righteousness, yet love finds expression throughout these writings, particularly in the Psalms. Nowhere can we find a better definition—of definition be possible—of religion than in Micah's utterance, "He hath told thee, O man, what is good, and what the Lord requireth of thee: only to do justice, to love kindness and to walk humbly with thy God." Hillel also taught the golden rule before Jesus. Have we not, for this and still better reasons, chosen him as the exponent of Jewish ideal and practice? In studying his life and pondering upon his sayings can we not learn much of loving kindness, gentleness, humility and piety? The ethics of the fathers set forth what the Torah took as its premise, "He that loveth God loveth his fellow beings; he that loveth his fellow beings loveth God." —American Hebrew.

Wasting Time.

They were dining off fowl in a restaurant. "You see," he explained, as he showed her the wishbone, "you take hold of them and I'll take hold here. Then we must both make a wish and pull and when it breaks the one who has the bigger part of it will have his or her wish granted."

"But I don't know what to wish for," she protested.

"Oh, you can think of something," he added.

"No, I can't," she replied. "I can't think of anything I want very much."

"Well, I'll wish for you," he exclaimed.

"Will you really?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Well, then, there's no use fooling with the old wishbone," she interrupted with a glad smile. "You can have me."

His Views.

The Rev. R. S. Hawker, rector of Morvenston, in Cornwall, was the poet of his rocky and beautiful corner of England. It has been said of him that he was a poet first, a divine afterward. His great and stirring song, "And Shall Trelawney Die?" will never be forgotten in Cornwall, and all his lyrics of the region are touched by such true and haunting local color that they can never be dissociated from the place. But, aside from his poetic gifts, this noted churchman had a fine sense of humor. Many persons doubted whether he was at one with his own church, or whether he had inner leanings toward the papal communion. Quorists, however, got little satisfaction out of him. One day some one asked him point blank, "What are your views?"

"If," said he, "my eyes were strong enough, I should have a perfect view of Labrador." —Youth's Companion.

A Strange Island.

Saghalien, on the eastern coast of Siberia, presents a very curious anomaly of climate. The island is bathed by two cold ocean currents, and in winter nothing protects it against the icy northwinds coming from the north. At the sea level the snow falls continually and stays on the ground till the end of May, and the sea is very cold. Farther inland, however, especially as we go higher up, the climate is modified—just the opposite to what is observed elsewhere. It has often been observed in Siberia and in central Europe that in winter the cold is greater in the plains and the valleys, and that the highlands have a sensibly milder temperature. It is as if the denser cold air accumulated in the lowlands. This fact is very often observed in our climate. There are several very good examples of it. All the trees and shrubs of a valley have been known to be killed by frost, while above a certain level, very clearly marked out, on the hill or the mountain, the vegetation has not suffered at all. The cold air often flows from the summits toward their bases. This is what takes place at Saghalien. The cold air accumulates in the low regions of the island and on the coast. The higher regions have a more elevated temperature. So it happens that the lower parts have an arctic vegetation, while the intermediate altitudes have the vegetation of a temperate zone, sometimes subtropical.

The birch, the ash, the pine, the fir abound in the low regions and form often impenetrable forests, but toward the center of the island appear bamboos, hydrangeas, aralias and other plants that one is greatly surprised to meet and whose presence can be explained only by the altitudinal climatic conditions of the island. —Cosmos.

Cause of Legislative Decay.

All the great modern democracies have to contend almost for existence against the popular disposition to treat elective offices as representative and to consider it of more importance that they should be filled by persons holding certain opinions than by persons most competent to perform their duties. The distinction between representing and administering seems plain enough, and yet the democratic tendency has been everywhere since the French revolution to obscure it. This has not unnaturally led to the idea that the offices are rewards for the persons who have done most to propagate or defend the views which they represent and ought to be given to them independently of their fitness. To this confusion of two distinct functions I must ascribe the deterioration which has been remarked so frequently in the legislatures of all democratic countries in modern times. The number of men of experience or special knowledge as well as of conspicuous men which they contain seems to decline steadily, while the interests committed to their charge as steadily seem to increase.

This disregard of special fitness, combined with the unwillingness to acknowledge that there can be anything special about any man, both of which are born of equality, constitutes the great defect of modern democracy. —E. L. Godkin in Atlantic.

New York Fire Horses.

The horses bought for the fire department in this city are numbered consecutively. When a horse dies or is sold out of the department, its number is dropped. There are about 440 horses in use in the department. About 60 horses are bought annually to supply new apparatus or to take the places of horses worn out or disabled. Fire department horses that are no longer fit for service are sold by auction. They may still be of use for some other work. The money received from such sales goes to the pension fund of the department. —New York Sun.

The South African boer does just as little work as will keep himself and his family alive, and most of that he gets done by Kaffir servants, who, in the more out of the way districts at any rate, are practically slaves.

Laying a Ghost in Siberia.

Mr. George Kennan tells a Siberian ghost story in St. Nicholas. After describing the first visitation of the mysterious ghost (it afterward proved to be a half starved dog) Mr. Kennan says: For two or three days after this, Yegor took refuge at night in the house of a neighboring friend and left me to tackle the ghost alone, but neither in the garret nor in the kitchen did I hear the faintest sound to indicate that the mysterious somebody who walked in darkness and left no tracks was abroad. Meantime, however, the news that a ghost had appeared to Yegor in the barin's kitchen, and that even the skeptical barin himself had heard the "unclean spirit" pacing the floor of the garret at midnight, spread to every house in the village, and the next Sunday afternoon who should appear at my door but a Russian priest, dressed in all his robes and followed by one of the church choir boys, with a basin of water and a small bundle of long, flexible twigs.

The reverend father came in swinging a smoking censer and reciting sonorously a selection from the old Slavonic psalter. He marched solemnly around the entry, the kitchen and the sitting room, fumigating every nook and corner with a ghost might lark, and then took the basin and the brush of twigs and sprinkled the whole house with water after the manner of the Greek church. Having thus performed his official duty, he greeted me courteously, apologized for the intrusion and said that it was his custom to conduct a ceremony of that kind once a year in every house in the village. I was not, of course, a member of his church. But he had taken the liberty, he said, of coming to my house because there were reports in circulation that mysterious noises had been heard in it, and the minds of his parishioners were disturbed.

Unshaved Too.

The following circumstance happened in one of the towns of Ireland. A man had been drinking until a later hour at night before he started for home. Honest folk had been long in bed, and the houses were all shut and dark. The liquor he had taken was too much for him. He did not know where to go.

He at last staggered into an empty wagon shed and fell upon the ground. For a long time he lay in the unconsciousness of a drunken sleep and would have undoubtedly been frozen to death (for the snow on the ground showed the night to be very cold) had not others less sensible been near him.

This shed was a favorite rendezvous for the pigs, which rushed out when the new-comer arrived, but soon returned to their bed. In the utmost kindness and trust hospitality, they gave their biped companion the middle of the bed.

Toward morning he awoke, and, finding himself comfortable and in blissful ignorance of his whereabouts, he supposed himself enjoying the accommodation of a tavern, in company with other gentlemen. He reached out his hand, and, catching hold of the stiff bristles of a hog, exclaimed:

"Why, mister! When did you shave yourself last?" —Pearson's Weekly.

American Brevity.

A rich American, according to the following anecdote, related in Good Words by the Rev. Donald MacLeod, D. D., presented himself one day at the studio of Sir John Millais, and, without preamble, began at once to speak.

"Sir," he said, "I wish to take a present back to my wife. She says she would like to have my portrait painted by the very best artist in the country. I have been told that you are the man. When can I have a sitting?"

"I am at present very busy," said Millais.

"So am I," was the reply.

"But I am a very expensive artist."

"How much do you charge?"

A large price was named.

"Shall I give you a check now?"

"Not at all," said Millais. "I merely mentioned it to prevent misunderstandings."

"How many sittings do you require?"

"Five or six at the least."

"If you can do it in a fewer, so much the better, for I am a very busy man and my time is valuable."

Millais enjoyed the manner in which his own plea of being busy had been met and agreed to paint him.

Heart Disease Cured.

When a well known minister after suffering for years with heart disease, is cured, it is not surprising that he should publish the fact for the benefit of others. Rev. J. P. Smith, 1045 Fulton St., Baltimore, Md., writes: "For years I suffered from a severe form of heart disease. I used Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and my heart is now in good condition. Recently, other afflictions came upon me. There was humming, painful sensations on top and back of my head. Fifteen minutes reading would make me almost wild; there were pulling and drawing sensations in my legs all the time, so that I could not sit still. In this condition I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative. Nervine and its effect was simply wonderful. I heartily commend your remedies." Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerves sent free to all applicants. DR. The popocrats seem greatly delighted because ex-President Cleveland can now give his full time to fishing and hunting.

The extensive flood news published in the REPUBLICAN Saturday evening was appreciated and a large number of extra copies were sold.

AFTER being shut off from the world in general for a few days the extraordinary facilities for gathering news are better appreciated.

RECENTLY Mr. Bryan wrote a letter to the New York Journal congratulating it "upon its work in behalf of cheaper gas." A right hard blow to his own stock in trade.

The work of the legislature is practically done. The governor is busy with the last measures that came to him for his approval. At midnight tomorrow night the session will have come to an end, and the legislators can return to the people they represent and give an account of their stewardship.

"THE ONLY" makes a side remark as if it favored an electric light plant erected and owned by the city. It also intimates what the republican councilmen would do if such a proposition should come up. In this as in many other things, "the only" has not investigated the record. Some of these same councilmen expressed their views and voted their sentiments when the present electric light contract was before the city council. "The only" might look the matter up as a matter of self information.

Don Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away. If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, because well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac of your druggist, under guarantee to cure, 50c or $1.00. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Mr. Gillman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had lung trouble, following typhoid malaria, and he spent three hundred and twenty-five dollars, with doctors, who finally gave him up, saying "Your boy won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for lung trouble. Trial bottles free at W. F. Peter & Co.'s drug store.

Bilious Colic.

Persons who are subject to attacks of bilious colic will be pleased to know that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and if taken as soon as the first indication of the disease appears, it will prevent the attack. For sale by C. W. Milhous.

HENRY KEESLING, Of Noblesville, Indiana, Recommends Wright's Celery Capsules.

NORLESVILLE, Ind., Sept. 5, 1896. WRIGHT MEDICAL CO., Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIR—I have purchased a box of Wright's Celery Capsules of E. S. Raymond, druggist, and used them for rheumatism. One box cured me completely, after having tried several doctors, and I cannot speak too highly of them and what they have done for me.

Yours truly, HENRY KEESLING. Sold by all druggists. Price 50c, and $1.00 per box. Call at drug store for free sample.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Robert Carr sold a fat shorthorn heifer to Henry Stottong for $36.

The addition to the Lynn Hotel is getting along nicely and it is now ready to plaster.

A. D. Bowen, of Jennings county came here this morning on business and to purchase goods.

Nathaniel Hamilton this morning began painting the George H. Meyers' two story residence.

Dr. Hamlin Smith and S. W. Shields, of Brownstown, drove up to the city Saturday on business.

The Hominy Mill Co., shipped a car of fine bolted meal to New Albany to day by way of North Vernon.

Emmons Brown left last evening for Marion by way of North Vernon and the Big Four to attend the state grand camp of the Maccabees.

Major Long dedicated the new Masonic hall at Brownstown Saturday night. Several Masons would have gone down but could not on account of high water.

John Patricks household goods came here from Detroit, Mich., and moved Saturday evening to his home on east Fourth street. Mrs. Patrick and daughter, Miss Ada, arrived here last evening by way of North Vernon, and they say they are here now to stay. Welcome to Mr. Patrick and family.

Thousands suffer from Catarrh or cold in the head and have never tried the popular remedy. There is no longer any excuse, as a 10 cent trial size of Ely's Cream Balm can be had of your druggist or we mail it for 10 cents. Full size 50 cents.

ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., N. Y. City. A friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm and after using it six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh. It is a most valuable remedy.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand avenue Brooklyn, N. Y.

Filled the Prescription.

De Quincy tells the story somewhere of a party of Englishmen who, finding themselves in Paris on Christmas day and being bound to have plum pudding for dinner, were unable to find a cook able to prepare the dish in orthodox fashion. Conferences with several distinguished chefs disclosed nothing but the most astounding Gallic ignorance of the British national dish.

This was, of course, before the days of the "petite vitresse," which brought across the channel so opportunely for Taffy and Little Billee and the Laird their Christmas dinner; so something had to be done. One of the Englishmen happened to be a doctor and also an amateur cook. He had in his possession a recipe for plum pudding, warranted orthodox. This, with some labor, and doubting much of its ultimate success, he reduced to the terms of a prescription and sent to an apothecary. Les trois Angliches then sat down to dinner and awaited results.

Sure enough, at the proper stage of the feast, when the plum pudding was due, entered the apothecary, in black silk stockings and small clothes, according to the custom of the day, and wearing a sword. Behind him came his assistant, bearing aloft the "prescription." It was perfect in every detail, even to the blazing halo of brandy. It is related that when the man of drugs realized the joke that had been played upon him, he was for putting his sword to other than ornamental uses. But one taste of his own medicine served to placate him and he sat at the feast with his English friends.

George III.

A small party is assembled in a room at Windsor round Mrs. Delaney, an old lady whose goodness and amiability have made her a great favorite with virtuous and pious royalty. One of them, Miss Burney, is an authoress of repute. The door opens, and there enters a large man in black, with a star upon his breast. Profound sensation is caused by his appearance, and the party, in compliance with a curious etiquette, show their awful sense of present royalty by huddling up to the wall. The king talks affectionately to the good old lady, and with playful appropriateness to her literary friend, whose novels he has read with interest. He has a trick of saying, "What, what, what," but otherwise, unless the report of his conversation has been dressed, he talks not ill.

He has read Voltaire and Rousseau. Voltaire, he owns, he thinks a monster, as a religious man, without being a great bigot, well might. Rousseau he dislikes less and had given him a pension. He reads the newspapers, though they are far from courtly. He is fond of plays and criticizes the comedies of his time. He has the misfortune to let fall the remark to a lady who would record it that "a great part of Shakespeare is sad stuff, only you must not say so." But so thought Voltaire and all the devotees of the classical rules. George spoke three languages and had a taste for music, so that, poor as his education in his boyhood had been, as a man he could hardly be called uncultivated or incapable on that account of taking in large ideas.—Cornhill Magazine.

They Walked.

"A Boston man and myself," says a Chicago newspaper man, "were once the guests of a Kentucky family. The staple articles of diet there are corn dodgers, baked in the ashes of the open fireplace, and bacon. Butter is practically unknown. It is not a grazing section. Our hostess, with evident pride, brought out for our delectation on the occasion referred to a small piece of butter. It had been bought months before in a far-away city and was quite superannuated and very self assertive. Both of us shied. The Boston man, forgetting the fate of Ananias, said he 'never used butter,' and I echoed his statement. The good woman evidently was disappointed. Pointing to a platter of bacon swimming in grease, she said, 'I allow you 'uns will oblige me, then, by walking yer dodgers in the dope.' We in-

LOVE IN MASQUERADE.

I dreamed that Love came knocking At your door one winter night While the specter trees were rocking In a blast of savage blight. "Oh, I perish," poor Love pleaded. "Open the door, for Love's dear sake." But although you heard and heeded Still no answer would you make; Not one word of sweet replying Would your haughty lips have said. Even if Love had lain there dying, Even if Love had lain there dead! Then I dreamed that Love's cruelled you, For in tenderest voice he cried, "Nay, dear lady, I sadly fooled you, Since I am not Love, but Pride." And you straightway opened your portals, With a merry and welcome nod, To that wildest of immortals, To that masquerading god. Ah, you opened your portals lightly, Not for Love's but for Pride's dear sake, Yet, O lady, if I dreamed rightly, Love soon taught you your mistake!—Edgar Fawcett in Century.

DROPPED FROM THE CLOUDS.

How the Race Horse Peytonia Won $800 For Little Miss Lowrey.

The caprices of fortune ever constitute a subject for special wonder, but the glorious uncertainties of the turf afford perhaps a wider scope for reflection on the ups and downs of life than almost any other sphere of action. Earl Lowrey, formerly of Pittsburg, but now of Chicago, tells a story that illustrates this conclusion very well.

On the morning of the day that Rey El Santa Anita won the American Derby at Washington park Lowrey's little girl, while looking over a programme of the events which he had carelessly left about the house, was struck with the name "Peytonia," the name of an entry in the first race of the day. So deeply was she impressed with it that she asked her father to place her savings of small change on Peytonia, the total amount being $2, which he agreed to do. On arrival at the park he at once discovered that Peytonia's chances for victory appeared to be very slim, one bookmaker offering 400 to 1 against her. Lowrey, nothing daunted, placed the $2 per order, and in doing so provoked a smile from the man on the block, which so nettled him that he promptly placed $5 more at 40 to 1 for the place. As has so often happened before, Peytonia fairly "dropped from the clouds" when the horses were fairly straightened out in the stretch, and to the amazement of every one won the race with comparative ease. Miss Lowrey's fondness for the name Peytonia therefore netted her $800 in cash, while the head of the family was $200 better off for acting as her commissioner.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Unfortunate Muses.

A correspondent of the San Francisco Examiner relates this incident of a dinner in Philadelphia at which Archbishop Ryan (Roman Catholic) and Dr. Watson were present: "It would be a great mistake to suppose that the archbishop dwells in an atmosphere of ghosts or is saturated with gloom. It was quite delightful to see him and Dr. Watson fraternize and exchange felicities. The archbishop said the inquiry had been made why all the nine muses are represented as unmarried. It was suggested in reply that it was thought more in accordance with delicacy and sentiment that they should be pure, unmarried virgins. But the archbishop's response was: 'No, that is not the reason. It is because all those who woo the muses are so poor that they are never able to propose marriage to them.'"

It Couldn't Be.

Dean Farrar quotes Tennyson as having related to him the remark of a farmer, who, after hearing a fire and brimstone sermon from an old style preacher, consoled his wife by saying: "Never mind, Sally, that must be wrong. No constitoshun couldn't stand it."

The Way With the Umbrella.

"I see by the papers that an umbrella factory has failed," remarked the veterinary. "I have noticed," replied the entomologist, "that with umbrellas it is either put up or shut up."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Saved by the Cattle.

Cattle have not the reputation of great intelligence or heroism, but, from an instance cited by Mr. C. G. D. Roberts in a volume of exciting tales entitled "Around the Campfire," it would appear that they do sometimes rise to an emergency. We abbreviate the narrative of an old farmer in the interior of New Brunswick.

One afternoon my father had sent me and my little brother Teddy to bring in the cattle. We were about half way home when there came a long, queer, howling sound from the other side of the clearing that nearly made my heart stop beating. The cattle heard it, too, and two or three young heifers started to bolt, but the old ones promptly hooked them back. Then, not a quarter of a mile away, we saw a pack of gray brutes dart out of the woods and make straight for us.

What do you suppose the cattle did? The old cows and the steers made a regular circle, putting the calves, with me and Teddy, in the center. They stood with their heads out and horns down, like a company of militia forming a square to receive a charge of cavalry. The old black and white bull was running the affair.

"I expect father'll hear the noise, and he and Bill"—the hired man—"will come with guns and save us," said Teddy.

The wolves charged straight at the circle of horns. We heard the old bull mumble something away down in his throat, and then one of his horns was through the belly of the leader. At this unexpected repulse the others drew back. After a brief hesitation they returned and stole round and round the circle, looking for a weak spot. On the other side from our champion there stood a nervous young cow. Suddenly a wolf made a rush upon her. She sprang aside, thus opening a passage, by which the wolf rushed into the very center of the circle, with his fierce red eyes fastened upon Teddy.

But the old bull had spotted him. Nimble as a squirrel, he bowled me and Teddy over like ninepins and was after the wolf, mauling and grumbling away down in his stomach. He fixed the wolf! Just at that moment father and Bill dashed up and snatched us two youngsters into their saddles.

A Famous Old Bugle.

A rare old curiosity is temporarily in the possession of the Kentucky Historical society at Frankfort. It is a bugle made of two slabs of cedar about three-sixteenths of an inch in thickness and bent into a funnel shaped horn. The bell, or mouth, is 1 3/4 inches in circumference. It is hooped with cow horn rings and iron bands. The bugle is the property of Mrs. Anna Mayhall, granddaughter of the late Captain Robert Collins, who was a soldier in the war of 1812-15. It was used in the campaign of Colonel Richard M. Johnson and was at the death of Tecumseh. Captain Collins was a bugler for the regiment, and this is the instrument he used during the war and which ordered the famous charge of Colonel Johnson. Captain Collins was a mechanical genius, and with his own hands made the instrument. Every morning at sunrise he waked the neighbors for miles around with his reveille call from the bugle until his death, in 1864.—Frankfort (Ky.) Call.

"Hail Columbia's" First Rendition.

"Hail Columbia" was written in 1798 by Joseph Hopkinson when congress, in session at Philadelphia, was debating; what attitude to assume in the struggle between France and England. Party feeling ran high, and the air was surcharged with patriotic enthusiasm. A young actor in the city, who was about to have a benefit, came to Hopkinson in despair and said that 20 boxes remained unsold, and it looked as if the proposed benefit would prove a failure. If Hopkinson would write him a patriotic song adapted to the tune of "The President's March," then popular, it would save the day. The following afternoon the song was ready. It was duly advertised, the house was packed, and, in wild enthusiasm, the song was encored and re-encored.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Chinese Superstition.

The strange unwillingness of the Chinese to afford help to a drowning man, or any one in absolute peril of his life otherwise, is based upon a belief that the ghost of the last man killed always acts as "watchman" of the hades or purgatory into which, according to Chinese belief, the spirit of the departed first enters, and from which he can only be relieved by the arrival of a fresh ghost. If, therefore, a man's life be saved from accidental death, the spirit of the person who died immediately before him is, in a manner, cheated out of his relief, and will assuredly haunt the person whose misplaced humanity has condemned it to a fresh term of dismal servitude. This belief also obtains among the highlanders of Scotland.—Exchange.

How to Please.

"One great source of pleasing others lies in our wish to please them," said a father to his daughter, discoursing on the "small, sweet courtesies of life." "We want to tell you a secret. The way to make yourself pleasant to others is to show them attention. The whole world is like the miller of Mansfield, 'who cared for nobody—no, not because nobody cared for him,' and the whole world would do so if you give them the cause. Let the people see that you care for them."—Exchange.

VISITING THE RIVER.

Great Crowds of Seymour People Spent Yesterday at White River.

Yesterday was a delightful day and hundreds of our citizens took advantage of the fine day to visit White river. The water had not fallen a great deal as a rise from another tributary had checked the fall which set in on Saturday and caused a rise of about six inches. Last night the water was at a stand again and a rapid fall is expected. Many people never saw White river so high as only the older citizens recall the higher water of 1875.

DIED.

Mrs. John C. Willman, one of Seymour's most esteemed ladies, and who has for some time been confined to her bed with disease, died at 10:30 o'clock Monday forenoon, March 8, 1897, with dropsy, aged twenty years. While she was a patient sufferer, she was ready at all times to meet her Saviour. Deceased was a sister to Charles Steinwedde, in whose cigar store she was saleslady for some time. A husband and babe one month old and many other dear relatives survive who have the sincere sympathy of all.

Mrs. Eliazah Dixon, of Ft. Ritner, died Saturday morning, March 6, 1897, with heart trouble aged twenty-eight years. She was a sister to F. W. Wesner, of Seymour.

William Sturgeon died Friday, March 5, 1897, at 8 o'clock in the evening, at his home near Waskom, with paralysis, aged 72 years. Mr. Sturgeon was born and raised there and was a prominent farmer and respected citizen. He leaves a family.

$100 NET.

Result of the Library Benefit.

The Dramatic Club met last Saturday evening at the home of Prof. H. C. Montgomery for settlement of the proceeds of the library entertainment. The reports showed gross receipts $155.40; expenses $55.40 net $100. The club is very well satisfied not only with their own efforts, but also the hearty cooperation of the press and business men, and the public in general; and a resolution was passed thanking the different friends of the organization, the press and the business men, the opera house company, Mr. Burdick and to Mr. Cox, manager of the opera house, and Mr. Bartlett, stage manager. The hearty cooperation of all these parties contributed much to the success of the entertainment. A committee with Prof. Montgomery as chairman was appointed to purchase $100 worth of books for the library. So ends one of the most successful home talent entertainments and public benefits ever given in the city.

Art Exhibit.

Miss Nina Ewing very charmingly entertained about thirty of her friends with an "Art Exhibit" on Saturday afternoon, March 6th, in honor of Miss Mary Breen, of Logansport. Miss Ewing's very pretty home was made prettier by being brilliantly lighted and tastefully decorated with roses, carnations, ferns and smilax.

Tables were filled with articles representing paintings or statuary, and the guests were asked to name what each object was supposed to represent. To the successful guesser was awarded a prize. Miss Murette Cole carrying off the honor. Dainty refreshments were served, after which Miss Breen favored the company with various vocal selections. When the hour for leaving came the ladies unanimously pronounced Miss Ewing's "Art Exhibit" a success.

THE E. & R. ROAD.

Superintendent Thompson's Walk.

Superintendent J. W. Thompson, of the Evansville and Richmond road arrived in the city yesterday, walking from Bedford. He started Friday morning. When he reached Cortland he was brought in a boat to a bridge and started away on foot. He soon found the track under water and in attempting to get around it got to a narrow island where he paced back and forth to keep warm for an hour. He was rescued by one of the section men who saw him and brought him to Seymour.

Mr. Thompson states that the road on the west end is practically a wreck. Several bridges are out and the bed badly washed out. It would take nearly a month to put the road in passable condition, but no efforts will be made to repair the road until after the sheriff's sale March 23. The track east of Seymour could soon be put in shape but it will not be done now as the running of trains over that part of the road alone would not be profitable.

FLOOD NOTES.

A large number of people and teams were Sunday given employment in hauling stone and repairing washouts on our roads.

Over 300 cords of wood were carried down the river from Rockford during the high water last week.

The long levee on George Vehslage place east of Ewing was washed away and his entire bottom land is overflowed.

Passenger train No. 10 that has laid at Brownstown since Friday was brought here last evening, the washout at Harlow pond being made passable at noon Sunday.

The bridge across Mutton Creek on the Newry road was washed away Saturday completely cutting off travel to Seymour from the section of country east of there.

A large trestle and two miles of track were washed away on the B. & O. between Vallonia and Medora Saturday. Medora is nearer under water than ever before.

The long bridge across Indian creek, also the bridge near the Allen Crane farm both on the Cortland road are washed entirely away, completely cutting off all travel to and from Hamilton township on that line.

The sixty foot span on the B. & O. over Hogan Creek near Dillsboro is undermined and the stone wall along the canal at Moore's Hill grade is washed down and the track is lying on top of it.

Charles W. Murphy tells us that the water from the overflow was on the porch of his home near Honeytown yesterday and that the overflow there was more than six inches higher than in 1875.

An employe of the E. & R. informed us yesterday that thirteen bridges and eight miles of track was washed away between Seymour and Bedford. His opinion is that a train will not pass over the line for a good while. The present condition of the road is very much worse than ever known.

Omri W. Tuell, living west of Timpico, drove to the city this forenoon. Mr. Tuell informed us that he has been a life long resident there and that the Muscatine river was one foot higher than ever known before and that the destruction of property is much greater than in any previous flood.

CHURCH NOTES.

Attendance at the Christian Sunday school Sunday was 119; collection; 97 cents.

There were six accessions to the German M. E. church yesterday and four christened.

There were six accessions to the M. E. church Sunday. The house was crowded last night and the service was highly instructive.

John R. McLean's Great Newspaper.

Without a single exception, there is beyond doubt no greater or more popular newspaper in the United States than the Cincinnati Enquirer; or a more successful publisher than its proprietor, Mr. John R. McLean.

The old-time prices for the Daily Enquirer have been maintained, and its circulation largely increased each year; hard times and cheaper journals failing to arrest its onward march and high appreciation of the public for its true worth and merit.

The Weekly Enquirer at beginning of the campaign year was offered at 50 cents a year, and its circulation increased by the addition of over 200,000 new subscribers; the most substantial and coveted testimonial a publisher could desire.

When asked for the secret of such success, Mr. McLean frankly answers: The Enquirer has no opinions to force upon its patrons, it simply prints the facts and tells the truth that the reader may form his own opinions. By maintaining the price of the paper, more news and greater variety can be furnished, and every class of business interests catered to, which a cheaper journal cannot afford.

The very liberal support given the Enquirer by the public at large, makes incumbent upon the management to serve it faithfully with zeal and enterprise in minor matters as well as those of greater magnitude.

Poultney Bigelow on German Education.
The great era of German domination in things mental was the era of comparative liberty, the age of Schiller and Goethe. Today the universities, the schools, the men of ideas—they all live too much in the shade of officials. A historian like Mommsen, a scientist like Virchow, a political thinker like Delbrück—such men are made to suffer political and social persecution. Germans appreciate greatness, but the German government tolerates it not. The great man must be a freeman, and a government of soldiers cannot endure freemen. Germans are justly proud of their vast army, their industries and honest officials, their excellent educational institutions. It is all wonderful, but not to my taste. I would rather live in a rough country and carry a revolver than feel that a policeman was always at my back.
We Americans may carry too far our admiration for German education. And this is directed particularly at parents who think of sending their boys to a gymnasium or the university. The German boy learns an enormous amount, but it is usually at the expense of his health, and always at the expense of time which should have been devoted to canoeing, fishing, shooting or sailing. Mr. Edison once told me that he admired Germans very much as chemists; that they were the only people patient enough for that work; but, so far as other useful knowledge was concerned, he could say little for them. And, as we all know, Edison is an expert on the subject of labor value.
There are several things which Germany could never have produced—for instance, Cobden, Abraham Lincoln, Henry Ward Beecher and Thomas Edison.—Harper's Weekly.

The Man Washington.
Lecturing on Washington before the Buffalo Contemporary club, Professor Moses Coit Tyler of Cornell said that, while the great Virginian's reputation as a soldier and statesman was safe, he was in real danger from the humorists of the future. This was owing to the fact that Washington, the real man, had never been very well known and is now almost forgotten, having been replaced in the popular mind by a myth type almost equally compounded of the heroic, the priggish and the statusque. Too often he was spoken of as a person who never said a naughty word, never did a naughty thing, who cut down that cherry tree with his own little hatchet, who never lied, apparently because he could not, who never laughed out loud, who never swore, whose behavior was always dignified and proper, and whose conduct was always such as might be expected of the good little boy in the Sunday school. These myths of exaggeration and adulation had their origin in the extraordinary qualities of the man, his extraordinary achievements and the gratitude of the republic which he was instrumental in founding. Modest, reserved and generally grave, the statement that he never laughed or smiled during the war of the Revolution had been shown to be false. Underlying these myths were discovered Washington's great reserve, formality, thoroughness and self control.—New York Times.

The Fact That Doctors
Frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from catarrh is proof that catarrh is a local and climatic disease. Therefore, unless you can leave home and business, you should use Ely's Cream Balm. Applied directly to the seat of the disease, it effects instant relief and a satisfactory cure after short continuance. No mercury nor injurious drug is contained in the Balm.

Dangers of the Grip.
The greatest danger from lagrippe is of its resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for the grippe, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that this remedy is a certain preventive of that dread disease. It will effect a permanent cure in less time than any other treatment. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by C. W. Milhous, druggist.

CASTORIA.
The fact is that Castoria is the best laxative and bowel regulator ever made.

ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR 1897.
HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers, New York.

Why He Laughed.
The thin man laughed immoderately, and the fat man naturally wanted to know the occasion for it.
"Why, every time I see you," explained the thin man, "I think of the remark my boy made."
"What was it?" asked the fat man rather doubtfully, as if uncertain as to the wisdom of making such an inquiry.
"He wanted to know if you were the baby elephant."
"If I had a boy who didn't know any better than to make fun of a man because he was fat, I'd thrash him," asserted the fat man, with some emphasis.
"Oh, so would I," returned the thin man promptly. "I know how sensitive fat men are as to their size, and I would have walloped the boy if I had thought he was referring to that, but I know he wasn't. You see, when he made the remark he was looking straight at your ears."

The Pope's Army.
The present army of the pope is composed of five bodies, the Noble guard, under the command of Prince Altieri, consisting of about 50 young men; the Swiss guard, numbering 100 young men; the Palatine guard, numbering about 100 privates and 17 officers; the gendarmes, numbering 100 men, and the firemen, who are classed as soldiers, partly because they are in a state of chronic feud with the Swiss guard. The pontifical army has also an official newspaper, published weekly, edited by ex-pontifical officers, under the patronage of the so-called minister of the army and entitled La Fedelta Cattolica (Catholic Loyalty). It publishes deaths, promotions, changes, but of course for 26 years has not been able to record acts of valor.—New York Tribune.

An Eskimo Child.
A little Eskimo child will bite through the skin of a walrus as easily as an English child will bite an apple, although the skin of this creature is from half an inch to 1½ inches in thickness and very much resembles an elephant's hide, and not only bite it, but swallow it, and yet not suffer from indigestion.

IS IT THE PAPER AGE?

SINCE PULP CAME INTO USE THERE HAVE BEEN MANY CHANGES.

Paper is taking the place of wood, stone and iron—it is now made absolutely fireproof—shirt bosoms that don't have to be washed.

Without steam and railways modern society would undoubtedly exist. But what a state of intellectual darkness would be that of civilized mankind without paper and the secret of its manufacture! For many years the rag met all demands of the paper industry. The increasing diversity of uses to which paper and paper pulp have been put in the last decade have made it necessary for manufacturers to cast about for more effective elementary substances. Boots, money, boats, gas pipes, impermeable casks, toys, bottles, pipes, floors, doors, ceilings, architectural ornaments, roofing, chimneys and even complete fireproof houses are now made of paper. Many claim that it will eventually supplant wood, for it will neither crack nor warp. It can be triturated, put under great pressure and subjected to certain chemical treatment and will then take a high polish and will resist the effects of fire better than any other material known. Paper is gradually supplanting metal in certain lines. Locomotive wheels have been made of it for several years, and even rails for railroads. The next progressive step will be to use it for the manufacture of ordnance, which is not by any means a remote possibility. Paper has largely taken the place of linen. We have paper collars and cuffs and blankets. An ingenious inventor has devised paper shirt bosoms, which can be torn off like the pages from a calendar, thus enabling the wearer to have a clean shirt front as often as he desires. It is only a matter of time before coats, dressing gowns and entire suits of clothes will be made from paper. The soldiers of the Japanese army wore paper trousers and jerseys during their famous winter campaign.

Wood pulp is the most effective substitute for rags in the manufacture of paper. Nearly every species of wood can be used. Some kinds yield more than others. More pulp can be got from willow and chestnut than from walnut. Different woods give various qualities and effects. Aspen will yield a very white paper, but defective in solidity, and is therefore mixed with fir. This latter wood is most generally used. It was first imported from the Black forest, in Germany. The chief supply is now obtained in Norway and Finland, in the form of planks or poles, never exceeding 3 feet 7 or 8 inches.

For the last half century the world's production of paper has increased tenfold. In 1850 it was 221,000 metric tons. The latest recent estimate was 2,000,000 metric tons. The European manufacturers are suffering from a glut in production. The price of paper has fallen one-third, while wages have doubled. The European plants are not so progressive as those in this country. They depend too much upon manual labor. In the United States the manufacturers have substituted machinery for hand work, and as a result of the decrease in the number of their employees are enabled to pay high wages.

Attention has recently been called to the utility of a little known species of paper called the boabab, or Ansonia. It is made from the wood of the boabab tree, which is a native of west Africa, and is known there as the "monkey bread tree." It is found in Abyssinia, Senegal and south of Congo river. It is of low growth and has a very thick trunk. While it rarely attains a height of 25 feet, the trunk is usually 20 to 25 feet in diameter. The branches are pendulous and bear an edible fruit. The inner bark of this tree is very fibrous. It is used for making superior wrapper papers, which have great tenacity. When the inner bark is stripped from the tree, a fresh growth supplants that taken away, and in a couple of years the tree is again in normal condition. The bark is peeled off but once in four years.

The latest addition to the paper industry is a sanitary note paper which is claimed to be germproof. It has long been known that letters frequently spread infectious diseases by means of the germs that contaminate the paper. An English firm has produced a paper which is impregnated with an antiseptic substance which kills all germs that may come in contact with the paper. If this paper proves to be what the proprietors claim, it is certainly a meritorious invention and will become generally used by hospitals and during the rage of future epidemics.

Chinese and Japanese papers have long been noted for their quality. It has recently been ascertained, however, that even finer grades are produced in Korea. One eminent authority states that "the Korean paper excels the very best that is made in China and Japan." It is manufactured entirely by manual labor. No machinery whatever is employed.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They Regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.
Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

For the better grades the bark of the Broussonetia papyrifera is used. This is placed in water, mixed with wood ashes and is then beaten until it is reduced to a thick pulp, which is dipped out in good sized lumps and spread out in thin sheets upon bamboo frames. A different grade of paper is made from fragments of bark, which are trodden under foot in a manner similar to that employed in the grape presses in some countries. This process of making the pulp is very tedious, but it possesses the great merit of preserving the fibers intact and not breaking them, as is done when machinery is used. The pulp is then metamorphosed into paper, and the sheets are stacked up in piles six feet high and cut into pieces. Then the piles of paper are compressed by the stamping of feet. The roots and seeds of a plant called tackpaul are added to the pulp when a grade possessing greater tenacity and toughness is desired.—Philadelphia Record.

Use and Abuse of Money.

There are many fellows at college who have money and use it well, but the more fact that a man has cash in his pocket does not get him on to athletic teams, or into college clubs or societies, or at the head of his class. It helps him on if he's a good chap. It holds him back if he isn't. Then by and by, when you get through college, you will find it just the same in businesses of all kinds. Money seems to help a good man along and seems to hold a bad man back. So that to think only of money first, and then of doing fine things with it after it is gained, is putting the cart before the horse. And, if you want to be in the senate, it's the wrong way to go at it to go down to South America and work in a gold mine for 20 years simply and solely to "raise the cash" for the purpose of buying the votes of a state, even if such a procedure were moral and right, which is unquestionably not the case.

Rather make up your mind what you want to do and then try to make a financial success of it as well as all other kinds of successes. If it is the hide and leather business, try to make money fairly, to learn the trade thoroughly and to keep pace with the literature, the politics, the life of your own day. If it is the ministry or law or literature, try to make both ends meet each year, and to make money just the same, but don't forget that all these branches of work require something besides cash to make them successes. In a certain way it is just as wrong to try to believe that money is an evil as it is to let yourself believe that money is the only thing worth having. It is a great good thing when you have learned how to use it and a mighty poor thing when it is abused. Decide, therefore, on what work you will set out, without regard to money, and then try to make a financial as well as an intellectual success of it.—Harper's Round Table.

Dupin and the Epigram.

Dupin's belief in the omnipotence of epigram as a moral vector for political as well as other immorality was to a great extent justified by his thorough knowledge of and his supreme contempt for the majority of his countrymen, and especially for those actively engaged in politics. He knew that in France one well delivered epigram was sufficient to start a man on a prosperous career, sufficient to hurl the man at whom it is leveled from the pedestal he has climbed with infinite trouble and perseverance. And, seeing that he had not his equal in the faculty for coining them, not even in Talleyrand, that his peer in that respect, Rivarol, had been in his grave since the beginning of the century, Dupin had never been very sparing of them. From that moment, however, he began to sow them broadcast, taking care not to hide his light under a bushel, for modesty was not Dupin's besetting sin. Rather than plead and not be reported he refused to plead at all, which, in fact, he did when asked to defend Beranger a third time. Of course he did not say so in as many words, but no one was his dupe, because every one was aware that, as an exceptional measure, the government intended to exclude reporters from the trial.—Van Dam's "Undercurrents of the Second Empire."

Hotels.

American hotels are so taken up with the desire to dazzle us that they sometimes make us uncomfortable. It is very fine and impressive to have one's card handled by two men and a big boy and then a little boy when calling upon friends at a great hotel, but it is fatiguing nevertheless to wait 30 minutes and then have the little boy come down and tell you they are not at home. Though most of us cannot abide some of the nuisances of the foreign system, such as being charged extra for soap and service, yet many traveling Americans, who are sufficiently patriotic, say that our big, glittering hotels are not quite up to the standard of the best ones on the other side in the small details of making one peacefully and restfully happy. The innkeeper's instinct for knowing exactly what is wanted without being told is more highly developed over there. They have been at it for so many more generations.—Jesse Lynch Williams in Scribner's.

Triplets in China.

In the southern provinces of China there is a superstition that if triplets are born one of the three children will eventually become a noted rebel, writes Dr. Henry Liddell in Domesday's Magazine. In order to avoid that direst of Chinese curses, a bad son, a "wise man" is sent for in order to decide which of the three children is the destined black sheep. The three infants having been conveyed into a perfectly dark room, the "wise man" takes three pieces of twine, each of a different color, as white, red and black, and entering the room, ties one of these pieces of string round a wrist of each baby. The one which, when brought out into the light, is found to have the red string on its wrist is drowned like a puppy.

He Had His Revenge.

"When a young and callow freshman, I used to try all kinds of fool experiments," laughed the usually staid professor. "The inspiration to these outbreaks of lunacy was in the surroundings. I would fall in a fit just to see some of the old people scamper about and look frightened. Among strangers I would sometimes pretend to be dumb, sometimes deaf and on occasions assume both of these difficult roles. Tom Hilder always used to help me when he was available.

"One day when we were on our way to college, a bevy of pretty, laughing girls took the train at a village station and fluttered into our car. I winked at Tom, and the farce began. After we had murdered the sign language of the mutes in a few meaningless finger gestures and facial contortions, Tom left for the smoker, for he never could control his risibles.

"What a pity," said one of the girls. "It is hard," chirped up the prettiest of the lot, "to be deaf and dumb and in addition to being so mortal homely. Note the size of that mortal, girls, the slope of that forehead, the failure to mate in those eyes and the hump on that nose that is Roman—all over his face."

"I came mighty near having a natural fit, for I was a fairly good looking boy and proud of it. Some of the other young ladies undertook my defense, but my defamer rode rough shod over them all. I was sallow, shallow, narrow and criminally disposed. If my picture did not come some time adorn a rogues' gallery, justice would be cheated. And that young fellow who had gone out was no better. I invented a case of nosebleed and fled.

"It was Tom's sister who had been visiting friends, and he put up the job. I got even with her, for she's my wife."—Detroit Free Press.

Why Jews Cannot Be Christians.

The divine origin of Jesus can never find acceptance with our people. His claim also as the greatest teacher of humanity can never be substantiated as long as we have Moses and the prophets, Job and the Psalms. Our laws come through the son of Amram, our exhortations to righteousness from the sacred seers, our submission to God's will from the dweller of Uz, our sweet sentiments of love and gratitude from the royal singer. The Old Testament indeed places emphasis on the element of righteousness, yet love finds expression throughout these writings, particularly in the Psalms. Nowhere can we find a better definition of religion than in the words of religion that in Mirah's utterance, "He hath told thee, O man, what is good and what the Lord requireth of thee: only to do justice, to love kindness and to walk humbly with thy God." Hillel also taught the golden rule before Jesus. Have we not, for this and still better reasons, chosen him as the exponent of Jewish ideal and practice? In studying his life and pondering upon his sayings can we not learn much of loving kindness, gentleness, humility and piety? The ethics of the fathers set forth what the Torah took as its premise, "He that loveth God loveth his fellow beings; he that loveth his fellow beings loveth God."—American Hebrew.

Wasting Time.

They were dining off fowl in a restaurant. "You see," he explained, as he showed her the wishbone, "you take hold here and I'll take hold here. Then we must both make a wish and pull and when it breaks the one who has the bigger part of it will have his or her wish gratified."

"But I don't know what to wish for," she protested.

"Oh, you can think of something," he added.

"No, I can't," she replied. "I can't think of anything I want very much."

"Well, I'll wish for you," he exclaimed.

"Will you really?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Well, then, there's no use fooling with the old wishbone," she interrupted with a glad smile. "You can have me."

—Comic Cuts.

It is said that among the Mexican populace there is an idea that the lizard warns men of the approach of a serpent.

It is a mother's duty to crown her child with that greatest blessing any human being can possess—good health. This she can only do by taking proper care of herself prior to the child's birth, and especially during the period of gestation. Two few women realize the importance of their own health. Too few understand that the health of their children is dependent upon the vigor and health of the organs of reproduction. A woman who is to become a mother owes it to her offspring to take thought of the most important and delicate organs of her body.

Every woman may be strong and healthy in this respect and insure the health of her child by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is designed for the cure of weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine. It is the best medicine for this purpose in all the world. More of it is sold than of all other similar medicines combined. Thousands have testified to its beneficial effects. It allays inflammation and restores the organs to their natural, regular, healthy action. It makes the coming of baby easy and comparatively painless. Mrs. Rachael Clark, of Houston, Tex., writes: "I am in good health since I have taken three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I have gained 25 pounds in weight, and my baby is a month old now, and weighs 10 pounds, and has two teeth. He had no trouble in getting them."

A clear complexion. Any one can have it who keeps the blood pure. Constipation causes impure blood. Dr. Pierce's Pellets cause constipation. One is a laxative, two a cathartic. Never gripe. Druggists sell them.

A Strange Island.

Saghalien, on the eastern coast of Siberia, presents a very curious anomaly of climate. The island is bathed by two cold ocean currents, and in winter nothing protects it against the icy northwest winds coming from Siberia. At the sea level the snow falls continually and stays on the ground till the end of May, and the seashore is very cold. Farther inland, however, especially as we go higher up, the climate is modified—just the opposite to what is observed elsewhere. It has often been observed in Siberia and in central Europe that in winter the cold is greater in the plains and the valleys, and that the highlands have a sensibly milder temperature. It is as if the denser cold air accumulated in the lowlands. This fact is very often observed in our climate. There are several very good examples of it. All the trees and shrubs of a valley have been killed by frost, while above on a certain level, very clearly marked out, on the hill or the mountain, the vegetation has not suffered at all. The cold air often flows from the summits toward their bases. This is what takes place at Saghalien. The cold air accumulates in the low regions of the island and on the coast. The higher regions have a more elevated temperature. So it happens that the lower parts have an arctic vegetation, while the intermediate altitudes have the vegetation of a temperate zone, sometimes sub-tropical.

The birch, the ash, the pine, the fir abound in the low regions and form often impenetrable forests, but toward the center of the island appear bamboos, hydrangeas, aralias and other plants that one is greatly surprised to meet and whose presence can be explained only by the altitudinal climatic conditions of the island.—Cosmos.

Cause of Legislative Decay.

All the great modern democracies have to contend almost for existence against the popular disposition to treat elective offices as representative and to consider it of more importance that they should be filled by persons holding certain opinions than by persons most competent to perform their duties. The distinction between representing and administering seems plain enough, and yet the democratic tendency has been everywhere since the French revolution to obscure it. This has not unnaturally led to the idea that the offices are rewards for the persons who have done most to propagate or defend the views which they represent and ought to be given to them independently of their fitness. To this confusion of two distinct functions I must ascribe the deterioration which has been remarked so frequently in the legislatures of all democratic countries in modern times. The number of men of experience or special knowledge as well as of conspicuous men which they contain seems to decline steadily, while the interests committed to their charge as steadily seem to increase.

This disregard of special fitness, combined with the unwillingness to acknowledge that there can be anything special about any man, both of which are born of equality, constitutes the great defect of modern democracy.—E. L. Godkin in Atlantic.

His Views.

The Rev. R. S. Hawker, rector of Morwenston, in Cornwall, was the poet of his rocky and beautiful corner of England. It has been said of him that he was a poet first, a divine afterward. His great and stirring song, "And Shall Trelawney Die?" will never be forgotten in Cornwall, and all his lyrics of the region are touched by such true and haunting local color that they can never be dissociated from the place. But, aside from his poetic gifts, this noted churchman had a fine sense of humor. Many persons doubted whether he was at one with his own church, or whether he had inner leanings toward the papal communion. Querists, however, got little satisfaction out of him. One day some one asked him point blank, "What are your views?"

He walked up to his window and looked out on the Atlantic.

"If," said he, "my eyes were strong enough, I should have a perfect view of Labrador."—Youth's Companion.

Racial Longevity.

The colored race is shorter lived than the white and has a very high infantile death rate. It is especially liable to tuberculosis and pneumonia and less liable than the white race to malaria, yellow fever and cancer.

The Irish race has a rather low death rate among its young adults, but a very high one among adults, due, to a considerable extent, to the effects of tuberculosis and pneumonia.

The Germans appear to be particularly liable to disorders of the digestive organs and to cancer.

The Jews have a low death rate and are less affected than other races by consumption, pneumonia and alcoholism, but are especially liable to diabetes, locomotor ataxia and certain other diseases of the nervous system.—New York Ledger.

Laying a Ghost in Siberia.

Mr. George Kennan tells a Siberian ghost story in St. Nicholas. After describing the first visitation of the mysterious ghost (it afterward proved to be a half starved dog) Mr. Kennan says: For two or three days after this, Yegor took refuge at night in the house of a neighboring friend and left me to tackle the ghost alone, but neither in the garret nor in the kitchen did I hear the faintest sound to indicate that the mysterious somebody who walked in darkness and left no tracks was abroad. Meantime, however, the news that a ghost had appeared to Yegor in the barin's kitchen, and that even the skeptical barin himself had heard the "unclean spirit" pacing the floor of the garret at midnight, spread to every house in the village, and the next Sunday afternoon who should appear at my door but a Russian priest, dressed in all his robes and followed by one of the church choir boys, with a basin of water and a small bundle of long, flexible twigs.

The reverend father came in swinging a smoking censer and reciting sonorously a selection from the old Slavonic psalter. He marched solemnly around the entry, the kitchen and the sitting room, fuming at every nook and corner where a ghost might lurk, and then took the basin and the brush of twigs and sprinkled the whole house with water after the manner of the Greek church. Having thus performed his official duty, he greeted me courteously, apologized for the intrusion and said that it was his custom to conduct a ceremony of that kind once a year in every house in the village. I was not, of course, a member of his church. But he had taken the liberty, he said, of coming to my house because there were reports in circulation that mysterious noises had been heard in it, and the minds of his parishioners were disturbed.

Unshaved Too.

The following circumstance happened in one of the towns of Ireland. A man had been drinking until a later hour at night before he started for home. Honest folk had been long in bed, and the houses were all shut and dark. The liquor he had taken was too much for him. He did not know where to go.

He at last staggered into an empty wagon shed and fell upon the ground. For a long time he lay in the unconsciousness of a drunken sleep and would have undoubtedly been frozen to death (for the snow on the ground showed the night to be very cold) had not others less insensible been near him.

This shed was a favorite rendezvous for the pigs, which rushed out when the newcomer arrived, but soon returned to their bed. In the utmost kindness and trust hospitality, they gave their biped companion the middle of the bed.

Toward morning he awoke, and, finding himself comfortable and in blissful ignorance of his whereabouts, he supposed himself enjoying the accommodation of a tavern, in company with other gentlemen. He reached out his hand, and, catching hold of the stiff bristles of a hog, exclaimed: "Why, mister! When did you shave yourself last?"—Pearson's Weekly.

American Brevity.

A rich American, according to the following anecdote, related in Good Words by the Rev. Donald MacLeod, D. D., presented himself one day at the studio of Sir John Millais, and, without preamble, began at once to speak.

"Sir," he said, "I wish to take a present back to my wife. She says she would like to have my portrait painted by the very best artist in the country. I have been told that you are the man. When can I have a sitting?"

"I am at present very busy," said Millais.

"So am I," was the reply.

"But I'm a very expensive artist."

"How much do you charge?"

A large price was named.

"Shall I give you a check now?"

"Not at a," said Millais. "I merely mentioned it to prevent misunderstandings."

"How many sittings do you require?"

"Five or six at the least."

"If you can do it in fewer, so much the better, for I am a very busy man and my time is valuable."

Millais enjoyed the manner in which his own plea of being busy had been met and agreed to paint him.

New York Fire Horses.

The horses bought for the fire department in this city are numbered consecutively. When a horse dies or is sold out of the department, its number is dropped. There are about 440 horses in use in the department. About 60 horses are bought annually to supply new apparatus or to take the places of horses worn out or disabled. Fire department horses that are no longer fit for service are sold by auction. They may still be of use for some other work. The money received from such sales goes to the pension fund of the department.—New York Sun.

The South African boer does just as little work as will keep himself and his family alive, and most of that he gets done by Kaffir servants, who, in the more out of the way districts at any rate, are practically slaves.

Many Think!

When it was said to the woman: "In sorrow shalt thou bring forth children," that a perpetual curse was pronounced, but the thrill of joy felt by every Mother when she clasps to her heart her babe proves the contrary. True, dangers lurk in the pathway of the Expectant Mother and should be avoided.

Heart Disease Cured.

WHEN a well known minister after suffering for years with heart disease, is cured, it is not surprising that he should publish the facts for the benefit of others. Rev. J. P. Smith, 1045 Fulton St., Baltimore, Md., writes: "For years I suffered from a severe form of heart disease. I used Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and my heart is now in good condition. Recently, other afflictions came upon me. There was humming, painful sensations on top and back of my head. Fifteen minutes reading would make me almost wild; there were pulling and drawing sensations in my legs all the time, so that I could not sit still. In this condition I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and its effect was simply wonderful. I heartily commend your remedies." Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerves sent free to all applicants. DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

VISITING THE RIVER.

Great Crowds of Seymour People Spent Yesterday at White River.

Yesterday was a delightful day and hundreds of our citizens took advantage of the fine day to visit White river. The water had not fallen a great deal as a rise from another tributary had checked the fall which set in on Saturday and caused a rise of about six inches. Last night the water was at a stand again and a rapid fall is expected. Many people never saw White river so high as only the older citizens recall the higher water of 1875.

DIED.

Mrs. John C. Williams, one of Seymour's most esteemed ladies, and who has for some time been confined to her bed with disease, died at 10:30 o'clock Monday forenoon, March 8, 1897, with dropsy, aged twenty years. While she was a patient sufferer, she was ready at all times to meet her Saviour. Deceased was a sister to Charles Steinweddle, in whose cigar store she was saleslady for some time. A husband and babe one month old and many other dear relatives survive who have the sincere sympathy of all.

Mrs. Elijah Dixon, of Ft. Ritner, died Saturday morning, March 6, 1897, with heart trouble aged twenty-eight years. She was a sister to F. W. Wesner, of Seymour.

William Sturgeon died Friday, March 5, 1897, at 8 o'clock in the evening, at his home near Waskom, with paralysis, aged 72 years. Mr. Sturgeon was born and raised there and was a prominent farmer and respected citizen. He leaves a family.

$100 NET.

Result of the Library Benefit.

The Dramatic Club met last Saturday evening at the home of Prof. H. C. Montgomery for settlement of the proceeds of the library entertainment. The reports showed gross receipts $155.40; expenses $55.40 net $100. The club is very well satisfied not only with their own efforts, but also the hearty cooperation of the press and business men, and the public in general; and a resolution was passed thanking the different friends of the organization, the press and the business men, the opera house company, Mr. Burdick and to Mr. Cox, manager of the opera house, and Mr. Bartlett, stage manager. The hearty cooperation of all these parties contributed much to the success of the entertainment. A committee with Prof. Montgomery as chairman was appointed to purchase $100 worth of books for the library. So ends one of the most successful home talent entertainments and public benefits ever given in the city.

Art Exhibit.

Miss Nina Ewing very charmingly entertained about thirty of her friends with an "Art Exhibit" on Saturday afternoon, March 6th, in honor of Miss Mary Breen, of Loogootee. Miss Ewing's very pretty home was made prettier by being brilliantly lighted and tastefully decorated with roses, carnations, ferns and smilax.

Tables were filled with articles representing paintings or statuary, and the guests were asked to name what each object was supposed to represent. To the successful guesser was awarded a prize. Miss Muzette Cole carrying off the honor. Dainty refreshments were served, after which Miss Breen favored the company with various vocal selections. When the hour for leaving came the ladies unanimously pronounced Miss Ewing's "Art Exhibit" a success.

THE E. & R. ROAD.

Superintendent Thompson's Walk.

Superintendent J. W. Thompson, of the Evansville and Richmond road arrived in the city yesterday, walking from Bedford. He started Friday morning. When he reached Cortland he was brought in a boat to a bridge and started away on foot. He soon found the track under water and in attempting to get around it got to a narrow island where he paced back and forth to keep warm for an hour. He was rescued by one of the section men who saw him and brought him to Seymour.

Mr. Thompson states that the road on the west end is practically a wreck. Several bridges are out and the bed badly washed out. It would take nearly a month to put the road in passable condition, but no efforts will be made to repair the road until after the sheriff's sale March 23. The track east of Seymour could soon be put in shape but it will not be done now as the running of trains over that part of the road alone would not be profitable.

FLOOD NOTES.

A large number of people and teams were Sunday given employment in hauling stone and repairing washouts on our roads.

Over 300 cords of wood were carried down the river from Rockford during the high water last week.

Passenger train No. 10 that has laid at Brownstown since Friday was brought here last evening, the washout at Harlow pond being made passable at noon Sunday.

The bridge across Mutton Creek on the Newry road was washed away Saturday completely cutting off travel to Seymour from the section of country east of there.

A large trestle and two miles of track were washed away on the B. & O. between Vallonia and Medora Saturday. Medora is nearer under water than ever before.

The long bridge across Indian creek, also the bridge near the Allen Crane farm both on the Cortland road were washed entirely away, completely cutting off all travel to and from Hamilton township on that line.

The sixty foot span on the B. & O. over Hogan Creek near Dillsboro is undermined and the stone wall along the canal at Moore's Hill grade is washed down and the track is lying on top of it.

Charles W. Murphy tells us that the water from the overflow was on the porch of his home near Honeytown yesterday and that the overflow there was more than six inches higher than in 1875.

An employee of the E. & R. informed us yesterday that thirteen bridges and eight miles of track was washed away between Seymour and Bedford. His opinion is that a train will not pass over the line for a good while. The present condition of the road is very much worse than ever known.

Omri W. Tuell, living west of Timpico, drove to the city this forenoon. Mr. Tuell informed us that he has been a life long resident there and that the Muscatine river was one foot higher than ever known before and that the destruction of property is much greater than in any previous flood.

CHURCH NOTES.

John R. McLean's Great Newspaper.

Without a single exception, there is beyond doubt no greater or more popular newspaper in the United States than the Cincinnati Enquirer; or a more successful publisher than its proprietor, Mr. John R. McLean.

The old-time prices for the Daily Enquirer have been maintained, and its circulation largely increased each year; hard times and cheaper journals failing to arrest its onward march and high appreciation of the public for its true worth and merit.

The Weekly Enquirer at beginning of the campaign year was offered at 50 cents a year, and its circulation increased by the addition of over 200,000 new subscribers; the most substantial and coveted testimonial a publisher could desire.

When asked for the secret of such success, Mr. McLean frankly answers: The Enquirer has no opinions to force upon its patrons, it simply prints the facts and tells the truth that the reader may form his own opinions. By maintaining the price of the paper, more news and greater variety can be furnished, and every class of business interests catered to, which a cheaper journal cannot afford.

The very liberal support given the Enquirer by the public at large, makes incumbent upon the management to serve it faithfully with zeal and enterprise in minor matters as well as those of greater magnitude.

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of constipation and sick headache. For malaria and liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c. per box. Sold by W. F. Peter, druggist.

Foulney Bigelow on German Education.

The great era of German domination in things mental was the era of comparative liberty, the age of Schiller and Goethe. Today the universities, the schools, the men of ideas—they all live too much in the shade of officials. A historian like Mommsen, a scientist like Virchow, a political thinker like Delbrück—such men are made to suffer political and social persecution. Germans appreciate greatness, but the German government tolerates it not. The great man must be a freeman, and a government of soldiers cannot endure freemen. Germans are justly proud of their vast army, their industries and honest officials, their excellent educational institutions. It is all wonderful, but not to my taste. I would rather live in a rough country and carry a revolver than feel that a policeman was always at my back. We Americans may carry too far our admiration for German education. And this is directed particularly at parents who think of sending their boys to a gymnasium or the university. The German boy learns an enormous amount, but it is usually at the expense of his health, and always at the expense of time which should have been devoted to canoeing, fishing, shooting or sailing. Mr. Edison once told me that he admired Germans very much as chemists; that they were the only people patient enough for that work; but, so far as other useful knowledge was concerned, he could say little for them. And, as we all know, Edison is an expert on the subject of labor value.

There are several things which Germany could never have produced—for instance, Cobden, Abraham Lincoln, Henry Ward Beecher and Thomas Edison.—Harper's Weekly.

The Man Washington.

Lecturing on Washington before the Buffalo Contemporary Club, Professor Moses Coit Tyler of Cornell said that, while the great Virginian's reputation as a soldier and statesman was safe, he was in real danger from the humorists of the future. This was owing to the fact that Washington, the real man, had never been very well known and is now almost forgotten, having been replaced in the popular mind by a myth type almost equally compounded of the heroic, the priggish and the statuesque. Too often he was spoken of as a person who never said a naughty word, never did a naughty thing, who cut down that cherry tree with his own little hatchet, who never lied, apparently because he could not, who never laughed out loud, who never swore, whose behavior was always dignified and proper, and whose conduct was always such as might be expected of the good little boy in the Sunday school. These myths of exaggeration and adulation had their origin in the extraordinary qualities of the man, his extraordinary achievements and the gratitude of the republic which he was instrumental in founding. Modest, reserved and generally grave, the statement that he never laughed or smiled during the war of the Revolution had been shown to be false. Underlying these myths were discovered Washington's great reserve, formality, thoroughness and self-control.—New York Times.

The Fact That Doctors

Frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from catarrh is proof that catarrh is a local and climatic disease. Therefore, unless you can leave home and business, you should use Ely's Cream Balm. Applied directly to the seat of the disease, it effects instant relief and a satisfactory cure after short continuance. No mercury nor injurious drug is contained in the Balm.

Dangers of the Grip.

The greatest danger from lagrippe is of its resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for lagrippe, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that this remedy is a certain preventive of that dread disease. It will effect a permanent cure in less time than any other treatment. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by C. W. Milhous, druggist.

CASTORIA.

Is an every day necessity.

Why He Laughed.

The thin man laughed immoderately, and the fat man naturally wanted to know the occasion for it.

"Why, every time I see you," explained the thin man, "I think of the remark my boy made."

"What was it?" asked the fat man rather doubtfully, as if uncertain as to the wisdom of making such an inquiry.

"He wanted to know if you were the baby elephant."

"If I had a boy who didn't know any better than to make fun of a man because he was fat, I'd thrash him," asserted the fat man, with some emphasis. "Oh, so would I," returned the thin man promptly. "I know how sensitive fat men are as to their size, and I would have walloped the boy if I had thought he was referring to that, but I know he wasn't. You see, when he made the remark he was looking straight at your ears."

If the fat man had not been constitutionally lazy, the thin man would have had to fight or run.—Chicago Post.

The Pope's Army.

The present army of the pope is composed of five bodies, the Noble guard, under the command of Prince Altieri, consisting of about 50 young men; the Swiss guard, numbering 100 young men; the Palatine guard, numbering about 100 privates and 17 officers; the gendarmes, numbering 100 men, and the firemen, who are classed as soldiers, partly because they are in a state of chronic feud with the Swiss guard. The pontifical army has also an official newspaper, published weekly, edited by ex-pontifical officers, under the patronage of the so-called minister of the army and entitled La Fedelta Cattolica (Catholic Loyalty). It publishes deaths, promotions, changes, but of course for 26 years has not been able to record acts of valor.—New York Tribune.

An Eskimo Child.

A little Eskimo child will bite through the skin of a walrus as easily as an English child will bite an apple, although the skin of this creature is from half an inch to 1 1/2 inches in thickness and very much resembles an elephant's hide, and not only bite it, but swallow it, and yet not suffer from indigestion.
